Cape Goishimisaki

The trail along the Goishi Coast to Cape Goishimisaki passes through an airy forest of Japanese red pine and black pine trees that were planted by local residents as a windbreak during the Edo period (1603–1867). The chalk-white Goishizaki Lighthouse stands atop the highest point at the southern tip of the cape. The nearby observation platform offers a panoramic view of the ria coast and is an excellent spot to enjoy both the sunrise and sunset. On a clear day, Mt. Kinkasan can be seen on the distant horizon some 80 kilometers away.
