DESCRIPTION OF DEFECT	Regarding some of the van type refrigerated/freezer trucks, strength of the joint between the body rail and the side panel is insufficient because of inappropriate construction management. Therefore, there is a possibility that the cracks may occur on said joint due to the burden at the time of running, and the body rail may be peeled off. And in the worst case, it may not be able to continue to run because the body rail will break and it may hit the tire.
