

Nijisseiki Pear

By Public Transport

Dining

The early fall is the season for the king of Japanese pears, the Nijisseiki Pear, which is a greenish fruit with an excellent balance of sweetness and acidity. As the pear ripens, it becomes golden in color and increasingly sweet. During the harvesting season from late August to late September, the pear orchards in Tottori Prefecture are open to the public for fruit picking.

Tottori Sand Dunes

By Public Transport

Main Attractions

These sand dunes, measuring 16km from east to west and 2km north to south, are the largest in Japan. The sands have been carried down from the Chugoku mountain range by the wind as well as the waters of the Sendai River over a period of one hundred thousand years, resulting in a size and scale that will leave you speechless. Visitors can reconnect with their inner child by running up and down the dunes bare foot and rolling around in the sand. Moreover, activities such as camel riding, sandboarding and paragliding are available to be enjoyed.

Nageiredo Hall and Sanbutsuji Temple

By Public Transport

Main Attractions

The Mt. Mitoku Sanbutsuji is a mountain temple located some 900m above sea level on the side of Mt. Mitoku. The inner temple, known as Nageiredo Hall, is housed in an almost vertical cliff face and has been designated as a national treasure. The details as to when and how it was constructed are unclear, but legend has it that this is where En no Ozuno, the founder of Shugendo (Japanese ascetic shamanism), demonstrated the power of Buddhism by raising the whole structure from the ground and into the cliff.

Kurayoshi Shirakabe Dozogun / Akagawara

By Public Transport

Topics

Shirakabe Dozogun, a neighborhood of white-walled storehouses, is located in Kurayoshi City. Many of these buildings were constructed in the Edo and Meiji Periods and the area has been designated as an Important Preservation District for Groups of Traditional Buildings. Formerly used as storehouses for sake breweries and makers of soy sauce, these buildings have been converted into local specialty shops, cafés, and galleries, which still offer a nostalgic atmosphere to visitors.
