Hachinohe Maeoki Mackerel

By Public Transport

Dining

"Hachinohe Maeoki Mackerel" refers to Mackerel caught in fishing grounds from the Sanriku Coast northwards, which are brought in to Hachinohe port during a period of time authorized by "The Hachinohe Maeoki Mackerel Promotion Council". The Port of Hachinohe is the northernmost main fishing ground of mackerel in Japan. As the sea temperature drops from the beginning of autumn, the mackerel in the waters off the Sanriku Coast put on good quality fat, and their meat is highly praised for both taste and quality.
