A Traditional And Versatile Seasoning Of A Fishing Town

Gomadashi (sesame dashi) is a soul food made with love by older women in fishing villages. It is made by grilling and flaking locally-caught horse mackerel and lizardfish and making a paste out of mirin, soy sauce, and lashings of sesame seeds. It makes a dish come to life and is used in a variety of dishes.

Saiki Sushi

Bungo Channel's Seasonal Catches And Masterful Skills Create Saiki's Gastoronomic Fare

Fish swimming in the Bungo Channel's rough waves have firm flesh and just the right amount of fat. When a skilled chef works his magic on such excellent fresh fish, it instantly turns into Saiki sushi. Saiki's sea yields one of the highest volumes and varieties of seafood. The range of sushi ingredients alone is said to exceed 50. Please enjoy seafood when it is in-season as it tastes the best and provides the highest nutritional value.
