

Ashitaba products

By Foot

Dining

Ashitaba (Angelica keiskei) is a plant of the Apiaceae family and draws its name from its remarkable regenerative ability. It is said that when picked one day, it will grow back by the next. Many ashitaba products, including tsukudani (small fish boiled in soy sauce and sugar), tempura and soba and udon noodles, are sold.

Ki-hachijo

By Foot

Shopping

Hachijojima is known for ki-hachijo, woven silk fabric dyed using trees and plants indigenous to the island. This traditional craft has been handed down since the Muromachi period (1392–1573) and the fabric today is used to make wallets, neckties and other articles.
