

Advanced Road Technologies

Of Japan's total land area of 378,000km², only one-third is suitable for living.

Due to its topographical, geological, meteorological and other natural conditions, Japan is prone to numerous natural disasters such as storms, heavy snowfall, floods, landslides, earthquakes and tsunamis.

Consequently, various road construction technologies have been developed to overcome the resulting severe conditions and difficulties posed by these natural disasters.

