

This corridor connects the kurī to the main hall. The entrance on the southeastern side is used by monks when they are called to prayer by the hanging bronze bell.