

The Takayama-sha Information Center includes tourist information desks, bathrooms, a multipurpose room with sericulture tools and displays, a silkworm-raising room, and a lounge that occasionally hosts special events such as silkworm cocoon crafts. Outside is a parking lot, a mulberry bush grove, a statue of Takayama Chogoro (1830–1886), and a riverside promenade that leads to the old Takayama-sha building. Guides at the Takayama-sha Information Center can accompany visitors to the historical site for a tour in Japanese, and audio guides are available in other languages as well.
