

Defending the Castle

Windows

Thick wooden bars were installed on the castle's windows to prevent entry and to deflect arrows and bullets. Two of the smaller keeps, on the west and northwest sides next to the main keep, feature bell-shaped windows decorated with black lacquer and gold leaf, a design borrowed from Buddhist temples.