

Defending the Castle

Parapet Walls

Himeji's huge stone retaining walls are topped with parapets made of earth and plaster. At other castles, these parapets are often built with a wooden frame or using techniques similar to wattle and daub. At Himeji, the parapets are made from solid earth coated with plaster for additional strength and fire resistance.