

Stone-dropping Holes

A feature of castles the world over, these trap-door-covered holes are built into towers, gates, and walls to allow defenders to observe and repel approaching enemies. The stone-dropping holes of Himeji Castle protrude over the battlements below. Using these holes, defenders inside could fire downward or drop heavy stones on attackers who reached the base of the battlements.