

Changing appearances

The outer appearance of the Old Public Hall has changed several times since its construction. Traces of past coatings of paint have allowed researchers to determine the building's original and subsequent coloration.