

Kagaminuma

Kagami means “mirror” in Japanese, making Kagaminuma a fitting name for this swamp, whose still, shallow waters flawlessly reflect their surroundings. This is one of two artificial swamps on the trail. It was likely created in the Meiji era (1868–1912) by diverting water flowing from the neighboring swamp to provide a scenic spot for enjoying the forest.