

Parking

Yokoyama View Point Parking Lot: Marked P2 on maps, this is the closest parking lot to the observation decks. It has room for 28 vehicles, including two wheelchair-accessible parking spaces reserved for visitors with disabilities. This lot often fills completely on weekends and public holidays. At busy times, guidance is provided by a sign at the parking lot entrance or a staff member directing traffic.

Sozo-no-Mori Parking Lot: When Yokoyama View Point Parking Lot is full, visitors are encouraged to use this larger lot, marked P1 on maps. It has room for around 50 cars. Yokoyama Tenkū Café Terrace is a 15-minute climb away, with quiz panels along the trail introducing the area's flora and fauna in English and Japanese. Because this walk is steep and the trail surface is not even, visitors should wear sneakers or other suitable footwear, avoiding high heels or sandals.

Visitor Center Parking Lot: A parking lot in front of the Yokoyama Visitor Center, with nine parking spaces.

Lawn Park Parking Lot: A small parking lot attached to Lawn Park.
